What is a Chevra Kadisha?

The work of the chevra kadisha, the sacred society, includes shmirah and tahara, traditional Jewish communal responsibilities.

Shmirah

Jewish tradition believes that the soul does not depart the body immediately after death. For this reason, it has become a custom that a shomer (guardian) stays with a body from death until burial, reciting prayers, often from the book of Psalms.

Tahara

The deceased is lovingly and respectfully washed and ritually cleansed with water. The body is then carefully dressed in a kittel or simple burial shroud. Throughout the process we recite special blessings, prayers, and readings selected from the Torah, Prophets, and Song of Songs.

A chevra kadisha is always on call to carry out these sacred tasks. Its services are performed at the funeral home with k'vod hamet (respect for the dead), ensuring that the traditions of Jewish burial are carried out. Of greatest concern at all times is the sensitive care and dignity of the deceased.

What We Do

Assist bereaved families to bury their deceased according to Jewish tradition.

Provide an opportunity for all interested members of our community to perform the mitzvot of shmirah and tahara. We adhere to traditional Jewish practices and welcome anyone who wishes to join us.

Act as a resource for the Jewish community for education about the rituals and traditions related to dying, death, and funerals.

The highest act of gemilut chesed (deeds of loving-kindness) is that which is done for the dead, for there can never be any thought of repayment.
